UNTRY Poland DATE DISTR. 80 Oct 53	12 %		·
Alert System in the 62nd Inf. Regt. There were four "practice" alerts in 1952-53, each lasting about one hour and in which all personnel with equipment, including weapons without ammunition, assembled in the parade area for a roll call. There days with their equipment, including weapons without ammunition. Passive Antiaircraft Defense old German air raid shelters in POZNAN N 52-25, E 16-587 and in PILA (SCHREIDEMUHL) N 53-09, E 16-487. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete shelter wints during their winter training. Shelter tents, accommodating 24 men, were ward of the tent poles and pins arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain the tent two layers of canvas with octton or felt inserted between the interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt merted to be warm, even during the coldest days.	700				25X
Alert System in the 62nd Infantry Regiment OUIRED THOURED THE OUIRED THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION There were four "practice" alerts in 1952-53, each lasting about one hour and in which all personnel with equipment, including weapons without ammunition, assembled in the parade area for a roll call. There was one "combas" alert in April 1953, in which personnel moved out for three days with their equipment, including weapons with ammunition. Passive Antiaircraft Defense old German air raid shelters in POZNAN N 52-25, E 16-587 and in PILA (SCHMEIDEMUHL) N 53-09, E 16-487. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter used. The tent poles and pins arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain arctillery units during their winter training. the tent the tent The interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas int a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	UNTRY	Poland			DATE DISTR. 30 Oct 53
Alert System in the 62nd Inf. Regt. THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION Z5 Alert System in the 62nd Inf. Regt. There were four "practice" alerts in 1952-53, each lasting about one hour and in which all personnel with equipment, including weapons without ammunition, assembled in the parede area for a roll call. There was one "combat" alert in April 1953, in which personnel moved out for three days with their equipment, including weapons with ammunition. Passive Antiaircraft Defense cold German air raid shelters in POZNAN N 52-25, E 16-587 and in FILA (SCHNEIDEMUHL) N 53-09, E 16-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter used. The tent poles and pins arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. the tent tent artillery units during their winter training. the tent The interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	BJECT			Practi ce Alerts	NO. OF PAGES 2
THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION Alert System in the 62nd Inf. Regt. There were four "practice" alerts in 1952-53, each lasting about one hour and in which all personnel with equipment, including weapons without ammunition, assembled in the parade area for a roll call. There was one "combat" alert in April 1953, in which personnel moved out for three days with their equipment, including weapons with ammunition. Passive Antiaircraft Defense Cld German air raid shelters in POZNAN A 52-25, E 16-587 and in FILA (SCHNEIDEMÜHL) A 53-09, E 16-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter used. The tent poles and pins were of steel and concrete tents, accommodating 24 men, were article tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. the tent two layers of canvas with action or felt inserted between the interior of the inner tent had another layer of oction or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.		1 0%
THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION Alert System in the 62nd Inf. Regt. There were four "practice" alerts in 1952-53, each lasting about one hour and in which all personnel with equipment, including weapons without ammunition, assembled in the parade area for a roll call. There was one "combat" alert in April 1953, in which personnel moved out for three days with their equipment, including weapons with ammunition. Passive Antiaircraft Defense cld German air raid shelters in POZNAN N 52-25, E 16-557 and in PILA (SCHNEIDEMUHL) N 53-09, E 15-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter used. The tent poles and pins tents, accommodating 24 men, were arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain two layers of canvas with action or felt inserted between the interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.
Alert System in the 62nd Inf. Regt. There were four "practice" alerts in 1952-53, each lasting about one hour and in which all personnel with equipment, including weapons without ammunition, assembled in the parade area for a roll call. There was one "combat" alert in April 1953, in which personnel moved out for three days with their equipment, including weapons with ammunition. Passive Antiaircraft Defense cold German air raid shelters in POZNAN N 52-25, E 16-58 and in PILA (SCHNEIDEMUHL) N 53-09, E 16-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter tents, accommodating 24 men, were used. The tent poles and pins were of wood. artillery units during their winter training. the tent two layers of canvas with cotton or felt inserted between the interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.					7.14
Alert System in the 62nd Inf. Regt. There were four "practice" alerts in 1952-53, each lasting about one hour and in which all personnel with equipment, including weapons without ammunition, assembled in the parade area for a roll call. There was one "combat" alert in April 1953, in which personnel moved out for three days with their equipment, including weapons with ammunition. Passive Antiaircraft Defense cld German air raid shelters in POZNAN N 52-25, E 16-587 and in FILA (SCHNEIDEMUHL) N 53-09, E 16-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter tents, accommodating 24 men, were used. The tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. the tent two layers of canvas with action or felt inserted between the interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	re of II
Alert System in the 62nd Inf. Regt. There were four "practice" alerts in 1952-53, each lasting about one hour and in which all personnel with equipment, including weapons without ammunition, assembled in the parade area for a roll call. There was one "combat" alert in April 1953, in which personnel moved out for three days with their equipment, including weapons with ammunition. Passive Antiaircraft Defense cld German air raid shelters in POZNAN N 52-25, E 16-587 and in FILA (SCHNEIDEMUHL) N 53-09, E 16-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter tents, accommodating 24 men, were used. The tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. the tent two layers of canvas with action or felt inserted between the interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	Sec.
Alert System in the 62nd Inf. Regt. There were four "practice" alerts in 1952-53, each lasting about one hour and in which all personnel with equipment, including weapons without ammunition, assembled in the parade area for a roll call. There was one "combat" alert in April 1953, in which personnel moved out for three days with their equipment, including weapons with ammunition. Passive Antiaircraft Defense Cold German air raid shelters in POZNAN /N 52-25, E 16-587 and in FILA (SCHNEIDEMUHL) /N 53-09, E 16-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter Lents, accommodating 24 men, were used. The tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 24 men, were used. The tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 25 men were used in artillery to 1857 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 25 men were used in artillery lents to 1857 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 25 men were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 26 men, were used in february 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 26 men, were used in february 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 26 men, were used in february 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 26 men, were used in february 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 26 men, were used in february 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. Lents accommodating 27 men artillery units during the coldest days.		TI	HIS IS UNEVALUATI	ED INFORMATION	0.5
Passive Antiaircraft Defense there were cold German air raid shelters in POZNAN N 52-25, E 16-587 and in PILA (SCHNEIDEMUHL) N 53-09, E 16-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter tents, accommodating 24 men, were were of the tent poles and pins were of wood. arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. the tent two layers of canvas with cotton or felt inserted between the interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.
cold German air raid shelters in POZNAN /N 52-25, E 16-58/ and in PILA (SCHNEIDEMUHL) /N 53-09, E 16-45/. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter tents, accommodating 24 men, were used. The tent poles and pins were of wood. arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. the tent two layers of canvas with cotton or felt inserted between the interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	There hour without There	e were four "pra and in which al out ammunition, e was one "comba	ctice" alerts l personnel w assembled in t" alert in A	in 1952-53, eaith equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in v	including weapons for a roll call.
cold German air raid shelters in POZNAN /N 52-25, E 16-58/ and in PILA (SCHNEIDEMUHL) /N 53-09, E 16-45/. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter tents, accommodating 24 men, were used. The tent poles and pins were of wood. arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. the tent two layers of canvas with cotton or felt inserted between the interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	There hour without finere out f	e were four "pra and in which al out ammunition, was one "comba for three days w	ctice" alerts l personnel w assembled in t" alert in A	in 1952-53, eaith equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in v	including weapons for a roll call.
(SCHNEIDEMUHL) /N 53-09, E 16-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter tents, accommodating 24 men, were were of wood. arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. two layers of canvas with cotton or felt inserted between The interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	There hour without fine there out f	e were four "pra and in which al out ammunition, was one "comba for three days w	ctice" alerts l personnel w assembled in t" alert in A	in 1952-53, eaith equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in v	including weapons for a roll call.
(SCHNEIDEMUHL) /N 53-09, E 16-457. Each of these shelters could accommodate up to 5,000 people. They were of steel and concrete construction. Shelter tents, accommodating 24 men, were were of wood. arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. two layers of canvas with cotton or felt inserted between The interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	There hour without fout fammur	e were four "pra and in which al out ammunition, e was one "comba for three days w nition.	ctice" alerts l personnel w assembled in t" alert in A ith their equ	in 1952-53, eaith equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in v	including weapons for a roll call.
tents, accommodating 24 men, were used. The tent poles and pins were of wood. arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. the tent two layers of canvas with cotton or felt inserted between The interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	There hour without fout fammur	e were four "pra and in which al out ammunition, e was one "comba for three days w nition.	ctice" alerts l personnel w assembled in t" alert in A ith their equ	in 1952-53, eaith equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in v	including weapons for a roll call. which personnel moved ing weapons with arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training. the tent two layers of canvas with cotton or felt inserted between The interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	There hour without fout fammur. Passi old G (SCHN accom	e were four "pra and in which all out ammunition, e was one "comba? or three days whition. Eve Antiaircraft erman air raid (EIDEMUHL) N 53- modate up to 5.	ctice" alerts l personnel w assembled in t" alert in A ith their equ Defense shelters in P0 -09. E 16-457	in 1952-53, earth equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in vipment, including the second of the seco	including weapons for a roll call. which personnel moved ing weapons with there were E 16-587 and in PILA
arctic tents were used in February 1953 by certain artillery units during their winter training.	There hour with out for ammur. Passi old G (SCHN accommonst	e were four "pra and in which all out ammunition, was one "comba? or three days whition. Eve Antiaircraft erman air raid (EIDEMUHL) N 53- modate up to 5,6 ruction.	ctice" alerts l personnel w assembled in t" alert in A ith their equ Defense shelters in P0 -09. E 16-457	in 1952-53, earth equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in vipment, including the second of the seco	including weapons for a roll call. which personnel moved ing weapons with there were E 16-587 and in PILA
The interior of the inner tent had another layer of cotton or felt material, stitched to the canvas in a cross fashion. The tents were considered to be warm, even during the coldest days.	There hour without four fammur. Passi old G (SCHN accommonst Shelt	e were four "pra and in which all out ammunition, was one "comba? or three days whition. Eve Antiaircraft ETDEMUHL) N 53. modate up to 5,6 ruction.	ctice" alerts l personnel w assembled in t" alert in A ith their equ Defense shelters in P -09, E 16-457 000 people.	in 1952-53, earth equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in vipment, including the second of the seco	there were E 16-587 and in PILA e shelters could eel and concrete ating 24 men, were
• SECRET	There hour without fout fammur. Passi old G (SCHN accommonst Shelt used.	were four "pra and in which all out ammunition, was one "comba for three days whition. Le Antiaircraft ETDEMUHL) N 53 modate up to 5,0 muction. The tent poles aretic tenders units during the series of the seri	ctice" alerts 1 personnel w assembled in t" alert in A ith their equ Defense shelters in Po -09, E 16-457 000 people.	in 1952-53, earlith equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in vipment, including the second of the se	there were E 16-587 and in PILA e shelters could eel and concrete ating 24 men, were were of wood. 53 by certain
SECRET	There hour with the recount of ammurant	were four "pra and in which all out ammunition, was one "comba for three days whition. Every Antiaircraft Werman air raid (EIDEMUHL) /N 53 modate up to 5,0 m	Defense shelters in Porton Po	in 1952-53, earlith equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in vipment, including the second of the se	there were E 16-587 and in PILA e shelters could eel and concrete ating 24 men, were were of wood. 53 by certain felt inserted between of cotton or felt
1.119V2 (3 PA)	There hour without from the from the front front from the front front from the front front from the front	were four "pra and in which all out ammunition, was one "comba for three days whition. Every Antiaircraft Werman air raid (EIDEMUHL) /N 53 modate up to 5,0 m	Defense shelters in Porton Po	in 1952-53, earlith equipment, the parade area pril 1953, in vipment, including the second of the se	there were E 16-587 and in PILA e shelters could eel and concrete ating 24 men, were were of wood. 53 by certain felt inserted between of cotton or felt

25 YEAR RE-REVIEW

ARMY review completed.

25X1

		-2-
4.	above the caserne archway or entrance there were black metal letters reading, "JED WOJSK" (Jednostka Wojskowa-Army
		the rifle compar	nies in the area had a white background,	25X1
	example: 2-ga Kom	p (2d Co.).		25X1

5.
- ;
				25X1

Approved For Release 2009/08/14 : CIA-RDP82-00046R000200310002-3

SECRET

25X1

SECRET

25X1

